Seabrook Presents “American National Standards Institute/American Industrial Hygiene Association (ANSI/AIHA) Z10-2005 Occupational Health & Safety Management Systems)” at joint AIHA and ASSE Conference

Mendham, New Jersey, USA (September 17, 2009) – Kathy A. Seabrook, CSP (US), CMIOSH (UK), presented “ANSI/AIHA Z10-2005 American National Standard: Occupational Health & Safety Management Systems” at the Fall Technical Conference in Denver, Colorado, USA sponsored by the American Society of Safety Engineers (ASSE) Colorado Chapter and the American Industrial Hygiene Association – Rocky Mountain Section (AIHA-RMS). The Broadening Our Alliances: Environmental Health & Safety 2009 Conference emphasized the multi-professional nature of the practice of accident and disease prevention, treatment and mitigation.

On September 16, Seabrook discussed the history of ANSI/AIHA Z10-2005, guidance vs. certification use, and multiple facets of the standard, including, planning, implementation and operation, monitoring and corrective action, management review and the need for continuous improvement. A copy of the complete presentation can be obtained by emailing rholleran1@msn.com.
